pecial Correspondence of the Dem. & American Augura, Dec. 30, 1859—5 P. M.

Editors Demograff.—The ceremonies of the reception and welcome home of Win. H. Seward have just concluded. Early in the afternoon thousands began to throng into the city from overy quarter, and the numerous streets of the city were literally jammed with the mass of human beings and vehicles of every sort. At a little before 3 o'clock a telegraph despatch announced that the train with Gov. Seward on bound was at the june. with Gov. Seward on bould was at the june with Gov. Seward on board was at the junction, a few miles east of the city. The cannon boomed forth the intelligence, and the living mass soon concentrated around the depot, where it is estimated not less than 15,000 were congregated.

After some filteen or twenty minutes of restless anxiety, the train arrived, coming in very slowly, it being almost impossible to make a passage for the iron horse through the dense multitude. At the instant the Governor appeared on the platform of the cars, the most deafening cheers arose, prolonged without number, and the band struck up "Home sweet home"

Mr. Seward was escorted to a platform where, as soon as the enthusiasm could be hushed, he was welcomed home in a very hushed, he was welcomed home in a very hushed, he was welcomed home in a very neat and handsome speech by Michael S. Myers, Esq., a prominent Democratic lawyer of this city. Mr. Seward responded in an elegant and nost appropriate acknowledgment of the honor conferred on him, and the pleasure he experienced in again reaching his home, and receiving the welcome of his neighbors and friends. Mr. Seward's re-enthusiasm.

Mr. Seward, after the addresses, was conducted to a splendid sleigh, and under escort of the Auburn Guards and Willard Guards about 4 a. m., in the store of Mr. Keuheustead, who had a large stock of goods and no insurance. The hardware stock of Mr.

THE CITY.

A NOCTURNAL PIC-NIC IN MID-WINTER .-It sounds queer, don't it! But nevertheless it's what Mr. Gradgrind would have called a fact-perhaps a painful one. It took place the other night. A young man of "great parts," much romance and a sprinkling of originality, concocted the scheme. It was something new--and novelty is the demand of the age-it was in short astounding, but practical, and there being snow on the ground he did not have to put his shoulder to the gentlemen were assembled at night, cutters were lined with furs, and estables, and away they went off to the woods somewhere's up North, and by the glaring light of two or three huge bon-fires that scared the reign of wintry choas and old night, they danced and laid their viands on the clear white spread of snow and from all accounts had a most originally uproarious time

New Year's Calles -- I he calling on New Year's day was not general; the cold weather, perhaps, disposing many to keep in doors, while others improved the heliday by taking a sleigh ride. In the morning, the Light Guard, accompanied by their Drum Corps, sponse was a decidedly happy effort, and was made formal calls upon their officers, Capt. interrupted repeatedly by demonstrations of STARKWEATHER and Lieuterparts Chapt. STARKWEATHER and Lieutenants CHAPIN and Keres, as well as upon Comptroller GARDINER; and met at each place with a cordial and hospitable welcome. In the evening there were quite a number of parties, public and private, which ended the celebration of the New Year merrily enough .-Though there was a good deal of fun and enjoyment, we are glad to say that we heard of no excesses and very little intoxication.

> PRESENTATION OF A SILVER PITCHER. On Monday the Board of Directors of the State Bank of Wisconsin, presented to the President of the Bank, Mr. John G. Indusch, magnificent silver pitcher, at his residence. The presentation was made by ELIPHALET CRAMER, in a neat address, to which Mr. Insuscu responded in a happy and feeling manner. A repast was served up afterwards and a happy time they had.

The pitcher is the workmanship of Mesers. Marson & Loomis, and is a very elegant affair. It bears the following inscription: "FROM THE DIRECTORS OF THE STATE BANE,

The driver did not nate him also. They may take Mr. Fitzpatrick, as they now say. They are convinced that Mr. Douglas cannot be nominated.

Gov. Wise will undoubtedly be supported by the Virginia delegation in the Convention. So high have the Governor's hopes risen herenpon, that he has made the strongest Union speech of the day.

THE COLD TIME. - The weather from Friday afternoon to Monday evening last, was intensely cold—the mercury during Priday night and Saturday, sinking to 24 or 25 de grees below zero. This is about as cold weather as we have ever known here; but happily it did not continue very long. It began to moderate during Sunday night, and Monday was bright and pleasant, though the air was still keen. Monday evening an inch or two of snow fell, improving the sleighing materially; and yesterday we had bright sunshine and a moderate temperature to help enjoy it.

If it be a crime to jest, the guilt of PRENTICE is beyond reprieve. For thirty years he has ponied into the current of ewspaper literature a steady stream of sparkling wit, that still gushes and flashes as from perennial fount. Pouring upon every ranscient topic some happy conceit, joke or fun, he has from the first been the idol of un-lovers and the SEERIDAN of the press. No opponent but has felt the sting of his satire; no contemporary but has in any war of words come off the worse for meeting the acomplished Prentice. The paragraphs in this volume are ar anged in the orders of the time. It is quite easy_to trace the various campaigns through the book, from that of Jackson to that of and the allusions to phrases and stories of sale of REAL ESTATE. Taxes paid. Abstracts of tithe day. Many a reader will live over again the hard-cider campaign with all its fun, by reading over the jokes that have long since been forgotten.

The spicy collection is so tempting that we have no doubt if a certain local was "in town'1 instead of "out of it", the readers of a paper published not a thousand miles from here would, since Joe Miller is exhausted, be served every morning with choice specimens of original (!) wit translated from PRENTICE and into Brickese.

The following is not out of date: "It has been suggested that the culture of hemp be tried at the South. A Southern Editor, remarking on the subject, says he knows all about cotton and rice, but doesn't understand hemp at all. Perhaps he may yet get the hang of it.17

The following is recent: "A Washington orrespondent of the Hartford Times says that the President sometimes sheds tears over the dissentions of the Democracy. It seems to be a crying cuil." In running over the pages, we notice that Wisconsin gets at least twenty hard rubs, of which Milwaukes receives her full share. As some of the hits are severely personal, we do not think it would be fair to copy them. Let see the children till it was too late to check them be hunted up by the curious or malicious. Of course it were utterly impossible, by any moderate quotations, to give an idea of the humor of the book. It is a perfect compend of jokes; and our friends who draw their daily wit from their latest reading, will do well to con its pages carefully. And to all who enjoy keen satire, and who indulge "laughter holding both his sides," this collection will furnish many a delightful half hour. W. E. Tunis & Co. have it.

BY LAST NIGHT'S REPORT Congressional Proceedings. WASHINGTON, Jan. 3-9 P. M.

Washington, Jan. 3—9 P. M.

Senate.—There was a very slim attendance. Mr. Hamlin asked leave to withdraw certain petitions. Certain private bills were read and referred. Senator King stated that the resolutions adopted at the Union meeting at Rochester N. Y., had been forwarded to the United States Senators from that State, and he would request that they would be read, and the Swortary read them accordingly. Mr. King desired to say a few words on these resolutions. He in presenting them was gratified to say that the people of N. Y. wavered in their attachment to Republican Institutions, and our present form of Government; all parties there entertained the sentiment that the Union must and shall be preserved. That sentiment could not be turned to party account; the Union meeting held had proven the strength of that sentiment, and the resolutions adopted epeak for the whole served. That sentiment could not be turned to party account; the Union meeting held had proven the strength of that sentiment, and the resolutions adopted speak for the whole people of the State.

He called the attention of the democratic Senators who had expressed disunion sentiments, to the fact that these expressions of attachment to the Union came from prominent democrats of the north.

attachment to the Union came from promi-nent democrats of the north.

The resolutions were laid on the table.

Mr. Slidell moved to refer the paper on the subject of the Houmas land claim to the committee on the Judiciary. It belonged properly to the committee on Private Land Ulaims, but as the motives of himself and colclaims, but as the motives of himself and col-league, on that motion had been impugned, and as Mr. Benjamin was chairman of that committee, he desided to change its reference. Mr. Collamer called attention to the fact that Mr. Benjamin was also on that commit-tee. The subject was laid over till to-mor-row.

A large number of petitions of more gener-A large number of petitions of more general interest were presented.

Mr. Brown, of Miss., desired to disclaim any intention, as imputed by the newspapers, to assail the President or his Message.

Mr. Doolittle referred to the great change which had come over the President's mind. Then he believed in the power of Congress over the Territory. Now he says the Supreme Court has established the right of slave hol-

Court has established the right of slave holders to carry Slavery into the Territories, and that neither Congress nor the Territories, and that neither Congress nor the Territorial Legislature or any human power could impair that decision. The men at the South had experienced an equally great change. The revolution had been forced by what they deemed their interests.

The Senator from Georgia had said in his speech in Augusta in 1840 that there were only four men in Congress who held to the power of Congress over the Territories.

Mr. Toombs corrected the statement; he referred only to Northern Representatives.

Mr. Doolittle said the first time the doctrine was advanced that the Constitution trine was advanced that the Constitution protected slavery in the Territories, was in 1847.

Mr. Toombs replied that the first attempt to prohibit slavery in the Territories, since 1820, was in 1846, and it was defeated.

Mr. Doolittle resumed, contending that Southern men now defended slavery on a general ground—that capital should own its laber, not hire it.

Mr. Chesnut denied the correctness of the statement; the South hald that statement: the South held that the tru statement; the South held that the true position of a negro was that of a slave.

Mr. Doolittle said that Southern men did not justify Slavery on the ground of negro-Slavery only, but on the broader ground that the National position was that of a slave.

Mr. Clay said that such a statement was wholly unfounded, and should not be made without sufficient syndams. When the Second without sufficient evidence. When the Sens tor produced the evidence he (Clay) wanted not only a garbled extract, but the whole article.

Mr. Brown, of Miss., said that the gentleman from Wiss. mistook the position of the South... They believed that slavery elevated the negro. Four millions of slaves occupy a higher position morally, socially and physically, than any other laborers on the globe. Mr. Donlittle reiterated: that capital must own labor, and referred to Mr. Hamlin's mud-silk speech.

Mr. Clement said every white man in South Carolina stood on an equal footing. It was a great misconception to suppose that respectable white men at the South are not laborers. The gentleman spoke of the white ers of the South as if he never saw one but he now saw a free laborer of the South before him. The people of the South did not despise a white laborer; if anything the people who did not labor suffered by the contrast. ... Mr. Doofittle knew that Southern men had differed on this question, but the South had advanced the opinions he had before referred to.

Mr. Pugh called for the evidence.

Mr. Doolitte : read an extra extract from the Rishmond Examiner, quoted De Bows and other sonthern journals.

Mr. Clay said the extract did not sustain the Senator's construction. Garbled as it was he wanted to see the whole with the senator of the season of the was he wanted to see the whole article; I was sensitive on this point; because a speed made by him five years ago had been garble by a thief—athletand renegade—named Hel by a thier—at the rund renegate—named herper.

Mr. Doolittle said he regarded his construction as correct. He did not object to southern men changing their opinions, but did complain as they insisted on northern men doing so also, not on a threat of breaking up the Union.

Redid not object to arguments, but did not

He also asserted that Mr. Calhoin as a momber of Mr. Mooroe's Cabinet had given an opinion of reorganizing such power.

Mr. Chestnut corrected the statement that Mr. Calhoun had, on the floor of the Senate,

Mr. Calhoun had, on the floor of the Senate, expressly denied such an opinion, Mr. Doolittle said it so appeared on John Quiney-Adams diary made at the time. Mr. Calhoun's disclaimer was made 25 years later. The opinion of the Republican Senators was not to be changed by threats of distunion; such arguments were not addressed to their manhood, but to their want of it. They did not believe that the Constitution gave unlimited charter to slavery, and were pledged to resist such a doctrine. It gents on the other side designed to seize on the Government, they would resist and put down the attempt successfully. They expected he could not close without referring to the epithet applied by the Senator from Virginia to the Northern States, as servile as States.

After further debate, the Senate adjourned.

Houss.—Mr. Boyce resumed, his remarks

House — Mr. Boyce resumed his remarks from Friday saying that he had shown that in eight Northern States, the Republicans in eight Northern States, the Republicans were in a majority.

Mr. Hielman, who had been referred to by Mr. Broyce, explained that in his remarks the other day, he meant that if the Southern States in any period of time should determine on the dissolution of the Union; for any causes which now exist, and the North resolved to prevent it, and if war should be the consequence of the North's determinating to research and the South's a determinating to research and the South's a determinating to research and the South's a feature and th determinating to preserve and the South's to destroy it, the responsibility would rest on the South.

THE SENTINEL DAILY, TRI-WEEKLY & WEEKLY. RUFUS KING, EDITOR.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 4, 1860. A Two-Edged Sword. The principal argument relied upon by Mr. Buchanan in his recent message to prove that the laws against the African Slave Trade are constitutional is as follows : It did not occur to the revered patriots who had seen delegates to the convention, and afterwards be-series overgates to the convention, and afterwards became members of Congress, that in passing these laws they had violated the Constitution which they had fremed with so much care and deliberation.

This is This is precisely the argument relied upon by the Northern Opposition to prove that the ordinance of 1787, (re-suscted in 1789 after the adoption of the Federal Constitution.) and the Missouri restriction of 1820, were also constitutional, and yet Mr. Bu-CHANAN, in the same message from which we quote, virtually says that these same revered patriots were simply a pack of old fools, and knew not what they were about when they ex-reised the power of Congressional sovereignty by formally excluding slavery from certain territories.

Population of Virginia.

The last Annual Report of the Auditor of Virginia contains some interesting facts as to the White and Slave population of that State. The whole population, in 1859, was 1,658, 190, of whom 511,154-were slaves. The inereass in population since the U.S. Census of 1<50 has been 236,539, divided as follows: Whites 194,113, or about 22 per cent.
Free Blacks 4,7-5, 6 8

Virginia is commonly divided into two

Bistricts, Eastern and Western, which compare as follows in population:

There are 51,498 free blacks residing in Dastern Virginia, so that the black exceeds the white population in that District, by some 10,000. In Western Virginia the proportion of Slaves is quite small and steadily diminishing. Indeed that part of the State is destined ere long to be rid of Slavery, Free Labor taking its place.

Profits of the Insurance Business.

The people of Hartford, says the Boston Traceler, are still becoming wealthy through their investments in Fire Insurance Companies. The Ætna has just made another great divident of ufty per cent. It divides half a million of dellars in stock to its stockholders, giving one share of stock for every two of its present one million of dollars espital. It now has a capital of one and a haif millions of dollars, and also a surplus or "re insurane-fund" of half a million of dollars, making securities in each of two millions dollars. In January they will probably make also a cash dividend of 10 per cent, on the old stock at least. The prosperity of this company is unexampled. We believe it commenced with a capital of $200,000, and within three years it has carried, by its own earnings, its capital from $500,000 to $1,500,000-making its stockholders rich-every share now leing worth over $200. For instance, $5000 invested in that company three years ago, at the market prices of its stock, is now worth $30,000 cash, and quick at that-and it has reselved an average of over 20 per cent. yearly dividends besides!

SENATOR SEWARD IN NEW YORK .- We give elsewhere an account of the reception of Senstor SEWARD in New York, on his return from his six months tour through Europe. The New York Commercial Advertiser

The Hon, Wm. H. Seward had good reason to be gratified with his reception in this city yesterday. There was a happy blending of personal warmth of feeling and gamine ing of personal warmth of feeling and genume and out-spoken respect for the consistent statesman, in the crowd that waited upon him. And the quality of the crowd must have been as gratifying to Mr. Seward as its magnitude. I do not remember that I was even inclined to denot remember that I knowld have answered lowa, or Minnesota, or perhaps Oregon. Of course all this is harmless, and the stories so current are wild exaggrations. At home I should laugh at them as heartly as any one, but I do not like to hear them's here, and nothing but the fear of making myself ridiculous by getting into a passion has preserved me several times from retorting a within by a taunt.

Besides, when I sit down and think over it calmly, I am forced to confess that it is nothing more than a fair retaliation for the blustering threats in which our people are so prone to indulge. They talk about whipping the North with as much self-complacency as if her whole population would not more that suffice for a breakfast for the militia of a single Southern State, and yet, John Brown, aided by soventeen white men and seven or lend encouragement to those who seek to reform the institutions of other founties even with the hope of benefit to the who seek to reform the institutions of other founties even with the hope of benefit to the who seek to reform the institutions of other dounties even with the hope of benefit to the who seek to reform the institutions of other dounties even with the hope of benefit to the who seek to reform the institutions of other them's but, Mr. Mr. Mayor and fellow-citizens, this at least we can always do; we can endount our internal affairs, he passed on his way to the residence of Gov. Morgan.

A number of our citizens informally proceed to the Executive Mansion and welcomed the returned Senator by repeated cheers. He appeared for a moment, and in a few hearty words, and with evident emotion, thatked his iriends for their welcome and retired.

The greeting was entirely informal, but appropriate and enthusiastic. The pleasure left by citizens at the return of an old friend, rendered it impossible for them to do less—white a regard for the well known wishes of the Senator himself, prevented them from doing more.

Mr. S-ward has greatly enjoyed his seven months' tour; and he returns in full health and vigor. The Interest Question.—Judge Nelson yesterday received information that an old case, involving the "after maturity?" interest question which went up to the U.S. Sapreme Court, from the Minnesota Territorial Supreme Court, has been decided. The decision is, that no other than legal interest—seven per cent, per annum—can be collected after maturity of the note,—Minnesotian.

The Clouds Disappearing from the Western From the X. Y. Tribune.

The Republican General Committee gave their welcome yesterday morning to Senator Seward. Soon after 10 o'clock, they assentiabled in Room No. 41 of the Astor House with bled in Room No. 41 of the Astor House with sonie of their friends, in all 200 or 300 men. Ex-Governors Clark and King, and the Hon.

Ex-Governors Clark and King, and the Hon. Truman Smith of Connecticut were with them.

Seward was escorting the true character of the interior plains, mountains, and rivers of the interior is dawning on the public mind. The clouds which covered the face of the earth with darkness—clouds of ignorance false rumors, and exaggerations, are vanishing rapidly which at one time was supposed to extend from the western boundary of Missouri to the Rocky Mountains and beyond, has also the Rocky Mountains and beyond, has also

At 10 1-2 o'clock, Mr. Seward was escorted into the room. He was received with three times three.

Judge C. A. Peabody, Chairman of the Committee, then said that the feeling of the company about him was such, as the demonstrations indicated, that in spite of all feelings which would make it proper on such an occasion to refrain from speeches of any kind, he was required by the friends of the Senator to say a few words to him. They were all delighted at his appearance among of the soil for sustaining animal life, and the dure and flowing waters are found by the an occasion to refrain from speeches of any kind, he was required by the friends of the Senator to say a few words to him. They were all delighted at his appearance among them, therefore, the effort would be rather to control themselves than to give utteranae to the feelings with which they were filled. Gov. Seward had not yet seen his family, and they all knew that that one great feeling was prominent in his mind. They were all delighted once more to see their sentinel on the watch-lower of liberty return again to the watch-lower of lib delighted once more to see their sentinel on the watch-tower of liberty return again to his country, to his home and his duty. [Applause.]

Judge Peabody spoke of the pleasure and pain which all had felt on Mr Seward's departure for Europe; pleasure that they were permitted to witness that depirture, pain that he was separated from them. Now they met with feelings of unmingled joy, as he returned in excellent health to his native land. They congratulated him, they congratulated themselves, and they congratulated the country, that he was here. [Applause.] They would not even allude to the events which had happened in Europe since his departure, they need not go to Europe to ask about him. But they would again congratulate: him and themselves on his safe return to his native land. [Loud applause.]

Senator Seward replied with much apparent emotion, that his memory gave back at once the reception of their kind salutations and every parting adien with which he had been honored from his native land on his departure. He did not know how much that general tribute had to do with his reception in foreign countries; but he had found in every parting accountries; but he had found in every had

[Applanse.] He had seen, in other lands, much to admire and much to appreciate, but he begged all to be assured that he had seen nothing aqual to the prosperity and magnificence of his native land. [Applanse.]

When he arrived in England it was known try many that he had been there a quarter of a century ago, and he was asked if on his second visit, he saw any signs of change or improvement, or the reverse. He answered that he saw signs of improvement everywhere; but when they asked if there were similar signs in his own native city, he and swered "Yes," with pride. Twenty-six years ago, when he went to London, he found it built of stone, and when he returned here he found this city built of brick. Now, when still built of stone, and when he returned here he found this city built of brick. Land of the pilgrims and the brave !

Long shall the flag of freedom wave O'er those who for their country bled. In freedom's cause thrir blood was shed: On Bunker IIIII brave WARREN fell, Upon those mounds there rests a spell, At Concord too, and Lexington, The fight was fought and vict'ry won; Green mountain soil was bathed in blood, At Bennington heroes withstood The Hessian hordes, and angry strife, With clashing arms the land was rife, STARRE, GATES, and threen were often seen. First and foremost, at duty's post, Abans and Gray, they did display True manly worth when 'twas called forth; Yes, other names might be arrayed, With all the deeds which they displayed In the forum and on the field, And how they made the British yield: Descended from a noble race, On Phymouth was their landing place; Stout hearts composed that pilgrim band, Their spirit never shall leave this land, Hall to the Angle Saxon blood! Hall to the Angle Saxon close; Hall to those who have ever stood Fast by the Tree of Liberty!

Hail to the land of Wasinsgron!

Hail to the day we celebrate !

Hail to the land so Iruly great

Hail to her such and every son !

"Then you think we'll have a hard one?"

before the coming of another day."

The men had no thoughts of going below, for they could see and feel; and they were not wholy ignorant of what was coming: so Had the thing beautiful to the same path he was now treading. What had been her fata? Had the thing beautiful the same path he was now treading. What had been her fata? Had the thing beautiful the same path he was now treading. BAHKING AND EXCHANGE OFFICE they went to work and secured the hatches they went to work and secured the hatches with thick tarpaulins; and when this was done, those that had no particular station gathered around the wheel. Another hour passed: away—and another. Ten o'clook came, and still not a breath. The ship lay upon the water like a dead thing, with the ropes, and blocks, and sails, rattling and flaping as she was was swayed to and fro by the lazy swells of the sea.

"What does it mean?" cried Griffin, as the boy struck fly beels.
"Hark!" said the captain, almost instant—"
He was interrupted by a cry from the

'Hark!" said the captain, almost instantly, "I guess you'll soon see. Did you feel that?-fla!-and that?" than:—Ha!—and that?"

It was a puff of wind, and a light flying of sprsy, or perhaps it was a spit of rain. At all events, the puff was felt; and the drops of water fell upon other cheeks than Manrice dull meaning which came ever the troubled waters. So other ears heard the rearing which followed; and other bodies quivered beneath the shock of the storm-giant when he came in his might.

water fell upon other cheeks than Matrice Lester's; and other ears than his heard the dull moaning which came over the troubled waters. So other ears heard the roaring which followed; and other bodies quivered beneath the shock of the storm-giant when he came in his might.

Aye—the storm had come. It was with wind and rain, and with an angry heaving of the sea. It came with a darkness like Erebus, and with the voice of thunder. The gale continued to increase in fury as the long night passed away. When the morning came, the scene was of awful grandeur. The wind was howling wit terrifio fury; and the broad sea was lashed into huge mountains, that foamed, and tumbled, and leaped along, over the bosom of the deep, seeming every over the bosom of the deep, seeming every moment ready to overwhelm and engulf the frail bark that struggled within the demon grasp.

Whon Captain Lester had observed the when Capital Lester had observed the signs of the morning, he feared that the storm would continue through the day, and so he told his men. The sky wore a hue of horror, and the rain was now driving down, mingling with the lashing sea. At noon it was still worse.

At length night shut in again, and not a story at of the passing away of the story.

At length night shut in again, and not a sign yet of the passing away of the storm!— The frightful howling of the tempest seemed rather to have increased than abated. The men gathered upon the quarter-deck, clinging for support to the racks and rails—for the life-lines swayed so much that they were afraid of them—gathered as near to the light of the binnacle-lamp as they could, as they from such feeble beams they mightfind some comfort. But not all were there. No-not all! Four stout, true-hearted men had been swept away by the storm. Near a score ewept away by the storm. Near a score were left; but how many shall see the light of nuother day? At nine o'dook Captain Lester went below. He took down a chart of the North Sea, and having spread it upon the table, he sat down to examine it. He was thus engaged, when Mr. Griffin came down; but he did not

"How is it?" the mate asked, as he saw

The good ship Pathfinder, of New York, and bound to Copenhagen, had entered the North sea, having left the Straits of Dover two days behind.

The commander of the ship was a young man, not over eight-and-twenty, and his lands of the single shad almost overpowered him. It is little while, however, he looked up again, and added, in a touching tone,—

"Ah, my dear friend, you do not know what I have suffered—tongue cannot tell it, nor can pen write it. That blow did break my heart—broke it in the rending of its tenderest cords, and in the crushing of all its earthly hopes! Do you believe in dreams?!"

"Hallo," the leader cried, as he saw start. "Yes. That is my name."

Then Wolfgano was not a myth after all. That mysterious wrecker, whose name was a source of terror to honest sailors, was a being of fiesh and blood, like other men.— Maurice gazed upon him with wonder; and as he gazed, he felt that he looked on a fiend incarnate. He had often heard of the pirateincarnate. He had often heard of the pirate-wrecker, and so dark and mystic had been the tales which the North-Sea sailors had told, that he had been inclined to believe that the whole theme was a fabrication.— Now, however, he had no more doubt, for the man before him looked as dark and bloody as were any of the pictures he had heard drawn of him upon the forecastle.

But our hero was not allowed much time for reflection. Wolfgang piled him with questions, to all of which Lester gave straightforward answers; well knowing that evasion

Wolfgang had now drawn near the water's edge; and soon coming to the mouth of a cave he entered it, followed by the three ruffians who had charge of our hero. The bottom of the cave aloped upward from its entrance for some dislance, and then became almost level. The captive (for such Maurice Lester now felt himself to be) frequently hit his feet against what he thought, with a chill of horror, were human hones attent around the cavern, but he could not clearly make them cut in the dim light. He also noticed them cut in the dim light. He also noticed that the bottom of the cave was very wet, as though it had recently been covered with water. The wrecker chieftain stopped, at last, near what seemed the end of the cave, and making a sign to his followers, they clapped manacles on the wrists and ankles of Maurice before he had time to note their intention.

"Now, Captain Lester," said Wolfgang,

"You must remain in this place for a short season. You are perfectly safe here. Silauce! Say not a word! If you attempt to leave this spot, you will be shain the moment you set foot outside the cave."

The top of the cavern, in some places, was but a few feet above his head, and in one place he discovered a small aperture, through which a faint light struggled, and on going underneath it, he thought he smelt the odor of vegetation and flowers.

On turning from the contemplation of this aperture, towards the mouth of the cave, Captain Lester observed, with alarm, that the

And still higher the waters rose, and more thickly the foul vermin clustered upon the devoted captive's shoulders and head, as their only places of safety. Driven frantic at last by the horrors of his situation, he was about to plunge into the surging tide and seek a watery grave, when his attention was arrested by the tread of rapid footsteps near the aperture above his head, and the sound of a harsh masculine voice, almost instantly followed by a noise as of a struggle, and a piercing shriek which thrilled Maurice Lester to the very soul. He could not be mistaken: it was Carrie's voice. Again he heard it, but now in tones of entreaty. Oh, it tous her voice. She was not dead! She lived and was nan him! Gathering all his strength he shouted, "Carrie! Carrie! Car-

"Haven't you seen 'em?" the man asked, straggling for breath.

"Seen whom? What do you mean?" demanded Lester, eagerly.

Dick stated up to his elbow, and gazed around; but he seemed to find nothing for which he was looking, and he sank back again. Had he not made this effort he might have spoken further, but the act of rising had exhausted him, and the last grain of strength was leaving him.

Dick managed to raise his hand to his head—to a point above the left car—and, as as he did so, he whispered—

"Look out—they asked for the cap'n.—That's where they asked for the cap'n.—That's where they struck!" He tried to speak farther, but his voice failed him.

Dark Madax:—The reputation of the Medical Discovery, in curing all kinds of humors, is so well established, by the unanimous voice of all who have ever used in, that I need not say anything on the subject, as the most skillful physicians and the most excelutionagists in the country are unanimous in its raise. In presenting the Medical Discovery to your notice, I do it with a tull knowledge of its curative powers, in relieving all, and curing most of the discases to which you are unfortunately so liable. That most exercisating discase to an affectionate mother. NURSING SORE MOUTH.

CANKER which is nothing but canker on the stomach; ther on the intentines and KIDNEYS creating a sinking, genericating, and an indifferent even to the cares of your family. RAW AND INFLAMED, your food distresses you, and you can only take certain kinds, and even of that your system does not get half the nour ishment is contained, as the actimonatous fluid of the canker eats it up; then your complexion lossetts bloom and becomes sallow or greenish, and your best day is gone. For wan of nour ishment your system becomes loose and aloby, and the fibre your system becomes loose and aloby, and the fibre of the cancer which the Medical Discovery is possible adapted. CURE:
